

Wellesley Primary School
Community Cohesion

Introduction

From 1st September 2007 all schools have a statutory duty to promote community cohesion.

Community: A social group of any size whose members reside in a specific locality, share government, and often have a common cultural and historic heritage.

Cohesion: The act or state of cohering, uniting, or sticking together.

By Community Cohesion, we mean working towards a society in which there is common vision and sense of belonging by all communities; a society in which the diversity of people's backgrounds and circumstances is appreciated and valued; a society in which similar life opportunities are available to all; and a society in which strong and positive relationships exist and continue to be developed in the workplace, in schools and in the wider community. (Alan Johnson, then Secretary of State for Education and Skills, speaking in Parliament on 2 November 2006).

Broadly schools' contribution to community cohesion can be grouped under the following three headings:

1. Teaching, learning and curriculum

Helping pupils to learn to understand others, to value diversity whilst also promoting shared values, to promote awareness of human rights and to apply and defend them, and to develop the skills of participation and responsible action.

2. Equity and excellence

To ensure equal opportunities for all to succeed at the highest level possible, striving to remove barriers to access and participation in learning and wider activities and working to eliminate variations in outcomes for different groups.

3. Engagement and extended services

To provide reasonable means for children, young people, their friends and families to interact with people from different backgrounds and build positive relations: including links with different schools and communities and the provision of extended services with opportunities for pupils, families and the wider community to take part in activities and receive services which build positive interaction and achievement for all groups.

Current Practice and Areas for Development

At Wellesley Primary School we are committed to promoting community cohesion. Current practice and areas for development are as follows:

1)Teaching, learning and the curriculum

- Children are encouraged to make up their own rules in each class for class behaviour.
- The school strives to give all children a firm grounding in the basic skills of reading, writing, maths and ICT in order to prepare them for later life.
- Emphasis is placed on children gaining independence and learning skills rather than just acquiring knowledge in order for them to develop into lifelong learners.
- Children are encouraged to act as good citizens and are awarded with monthly 'Citizen of the Month Awards' for outstanding acts of citizenship.
- In order to develop children's life skills children are taught from a comprehensive PSHE scheme on a weekly basis. Topics amongst others include: bullying, sex education, drugs, disability, cultural diversity, discrimination, the world of work, healthy eating and living and tolerating others,
- Each child takes part in weekly circle time sessions designed to help resolve individual and common issues relevant to children in each class.
- A number of children act as playground buddies supporting other children play at lunch and break times.
- Christianity, Sikhism, Islam and Christianity are taught across the school in order to develop children's understanding of different religions.
- As part of the geography curriculum children study life of people who live in London and India and compare it with life in their own community.
- Two children from each class sit on a school council to debate and decide upon solutions to school issues.
- Children across the school have been working for the past twelve months towards the Eco Schools Award and have been learning about the importance of becoming environmentally friendly.

Areas for Development

- Develop further children's understanding of life in different cultures.

Actions - A whole school project based around multicultural Bristol was taught during the Spring Term 2010. This successfully informed children about the variety of different cultures in the Bristol. Many children gained a good insight into the way of life associated with the different cultures they studied. Children will continue to study different cultures as part of their learning throughout the curriculum.

2)Equality and Excellence

- Staff appointments are all organised following guidelines from the local authority.
- Policies regarding staff appraisals, discipline, appeals, grievance and pay are all in line with South Gloucestershire model policies and all are strictly adhered to.
- The school has a Race Equality Policy, Gender Equality Plan, Disability Plan and Accessibility Plan. These have all been written following Government guidelines and are adhered to and reviewed on a regular basis.
- The school has a safeguarding policy which is reviewed on a yearly basis. The Child Protection Officer attends Local Authority training on a two yearly basis and staff are provided with in-house training on a yearly basis.
- The school SENCo uses in house assessment data to identify early on children who have special educational needs. Children with special needs are given individual education plans and are supported through a variety of intervention programmes which are run by a dedicated team of ten teaching assistants.
- All children are catered for through carefully differentiated work on a daily basis.
- Teaching and learning initiatives have been introduced to target the attainment of boys across the school. These have included providing opportunities to developing speaking and listening skills, providing opportunities for hands on kinaesthetic learning on a regular basis and picking topics which will particularly interesting to boys.
- Assessment data is analysis on a regular basis to ensure that the needs of all learners are being met in the school.
- The school is very well resourced and has a wide range of resources to support all children in the school regardless of their ability.
- The new school building has been specifically designed to meet the needs of children and adults with physical disabilities.

3)Engagement and Extended Schools
